Gen. Carter W. Clarke To Retire on Sunday

Brig. Gen. Carter Weldon Clarke, courier for the Dewey-Marshall correspondence in the 1944 Presidential campaign, will be among the generals retiring at a Fort Myer ceremony.

More than 1,000 troops will march in review.

Gen. Clarke will remain here after retirement. He and Mrs. Clarke live in the Westchester apartments.

Gen. Clarke.

The general was active in the Pearl Harbor investigations. He conducted three special inquiries into the disaster for Gen. George Marshall.

Gen. Marshall chose him as confidential go-between to carry an appeal urging Gov. Dewey not to inject the Pearl Harbor controversy into the campaign.

Gen. Clarke has spent 39 years in military service, much of the time in intelligence work.
